STAYS OUT OF COURT

Weave Chain of Circumstantial Evidence With Alleged Indirect Confessions

By Associated Press
Chicago—Indirect confessions he attributed to the defendant were the burden of the jury address Wednesday of George E. Gorman, assistant state's attorney, first speaker in the Shepherd murder trial. In opening late Tuesday Gorman demanded the death penalty for William Darling Shepherd for the "coldly calculated, brutal murder" of Billy McClintock, his millionaire foster son, by administering typhoid germs.

Mrs. Shepherd, who burst into tears Tuesday when Gorman said she had been used as a tool by Shepherd in keeping Billy from marrying before an opportune moment for slaying him arose was not in the courtroom Wednesday. She was in the criminal courts building before court opened but would not listen to Gorman's arraignment of her husband.

The prosecutor gathered together the evidence connecting Faiman with the case and justified it as borne out by other links in the circumstantial chain.

He summarized and analyzed Shepherd's life as it had been detailed on the stand a short time before by the defendant.

The prosecutor had been talking an hour when a recess interrupted him. It was indicated he was near the end of his address to the jury. William Scott Stewart, of defense counsel, was ready to open for his client. He had a great stack of law books with paper tabs marking passages he apparently intended to read to the jury.

Only four speeches to the jury will be made, it was indicated, but no time limit for them was set. The demand for the death penalty for Shepherd made by Gorman will be reiterated by Prosecutor Robert E. Crowe just before the jury begins deliberating on the defendant's fate.

When Mr. Gorman concludes, Attorneys William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien will speak for the defense.

Assemblymen Kill Time By Dancing And Playing Cards

BULLETIN.
By Associated Press
Madison—At 1:45 p. m. Wednesday the assembly still lacked two votes of enough to "raise" the call of the house. At that time Assemblyman Price again moved to accept the sergeant's report and raise the call. Three members had returned in the interim since 11 o'clock. They were F. A. Mueller, A. M. Miller and Matt Koenigs. The vote was still two short however. It was 49 to 25.

Madison—Refusing to lift the call under which it is marking time and likewise refusing to adjourn, the assembly remained at ease Wednesday morning, awaiting the return of more absent members to vote on the bill making the income tax law enacted this session retroactive.

The assembly refused twice, at 9 and 10 o'clock, to accept the report of the sergeant-at-arms and the call under which the members have been confined to their chamber since Tuesday noon, continued in effect. The

HUNT BODIES OF SUICIDE COUPLE

Note Says Married Man and Girl, Despairing in Love, Intended to Die

By Associated Press
Forrester, Mich.—Friends and relatives Wednesday continued their search along Lake Huron for the bodies of Charles Kirkpatrick, 35, McGregor, and Ruby Eopra, 17, a former maid at the Kirkpatrick home who disappeared Saturday leaving notes saying they intended to "die together" because of the hopelessness of their love.

A note signed "Charlie and Ruby" was found in a boat here Tuesday a short distance from the spot where Kirkpatrick's abandoned automobile stood. The note in the girl's handwriting was a plea for forgiveness and told of the entanglements that led to the decision to die.

Kirkpatrick is the father of two boys, 13 and 10, and of a girl of 2 years. Mrs. Kirkpatrick is reported as prostrated and firm in the belief that the bodies of the two will be found in the lake.

CHINESE KILL EUROPEANS IN NEW OUTBREAK

Women and Children Are Forced to Flee Disturbance at Shameen Island

ENVOYS WANT WARSHIPS

Detachment of British-Indian Troops Leave for Latest Scene of Massacres

By Associated Press
Canton — Several Europeans were killed and many others wounded Wednesday when fighting broke out between Chinese agitators and residents of Shameen, the foreign concession here.

Women and children are fleeing on the U. S. S. Asheville preparing to leave, for Hongkong Thursday night. The situation is extremely serious. The break Wednesday came after a demonstration fired in the direction of Shameen Tuesday killing a noncombatant Frenchman, E. Pasquier, and injuring Commissioner of Customs Edwards and V. G. Murrell, a chemist. The latter was shot in the arm. Edwards was wounded in the knee.

It was impossible to foresee the outcome of the present trouble which apparently will last for some time.

SITUATION SERIOUS
New York — Overnight dispatches from Canton, now hotbed of Chinese anti-foreign agitators, pictures a serious situation. Apparently alarmed by Chinese exchanged shots with the Tuesday's outbreak, in which excited guards around the foreign settlement on Shameen island the authorities are sending defenseless foreign civilians from the trouble zone.

A British steamer carrying 500 women and children arrived at Hongkong from Shameen Wednesday morning. The American gunboat Helena is proceeding to Canton from Hongkong.

The situation at Amoy, north of Hongkong, is reported increasingly grave due to the persistent anti-foreign propaganda in circulation there. Despite assurances from the Chinese authorities that the unruly elements can be kept in hand the American, British and Japanese consuls have requested their governments to send warships and meanwhile a steamer is being held ready to take off the foreign women and children should trouble arise.

Disturbances are also feared at Peking on the occasion of the dragon festival Thursday and all of the legations are reported to be taking precautions to meet any violent movement.

GIVE WARNING
Hongkong — The British consul general at Canton, it is learned, sent a note to the Canton government on Monday prior to Tuesday's shooting incident, warning the Chinese authorities that any attempt to penetrate Shameen, the foreign settlement would be resisted by force and that the government would be held responsible for the consequences.

The consul general said he was drafting the document because he learned that during the planned patriotic demonstrations student elements intended "making martyrs" of themselves by attacking the bridge leading to Shameen. Precautions were being taken to guard against acts of mob violence, the consul general said.

A detachment of British-Indian troops left for Shameen, the foreign section of Canton, as a precautionary measure following Tuesday's outbreak.

SECURITY PACT LIMITED TO THREE POWERS ONLY

By Associated Press
London—Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain Wednesday told the house of commons that Great Britain's obligations under the proposed western European security pact "must be definitely limited to the frontier between Germany on the one side and France and Belgium on the other."

He added that "our guarantees of that frontier cannot be invoked by a wrongdoer."

He said the abstention of the British empire, and of Great Britain in particular, from European affairs never had served and never would serve the interests of peace. Great Britain's signature to the covenant of the League of Nations was incompatible with isolation.

Tax Cuts Should Stimulate Business, Coolidge Thinks

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1925 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge projects before the American people the prospect of a business revival. More reduction of taxes will bring that about in his judgment.

This, in brief, is the administration's answer to the statement, "that this continuing drive for economy in federal expenditure is hurting business."

Mr. Coolidge took cognizance for the first time publicly of the criticism which has been leveled at him because the purchases made by the American public are alleged to have declined in recent months. The statements however were not all related to government economy but to the psychological effects of the personal economy he has been practicing.

The president does not touch upon this in his speech because he and his friends do not take the charge seriously.

If the American people are not spending their money as lavishly as they have before he does not think this is due to any hint from the White House.

Broadly speaking, the president's speech to the business organization of the government is calculated to have a healthful effect on business because it is the first direct word that has come from the administration since congress adjourned as to the prospect of tax reduction.

"If there is one thing above all others," says the president, "that will stimulate business it is tax reduction; if the government takes less, private business can have more. If constructive economy in federal expenditure can be assured, it will be a stimulation to enterprise and investment."

While the wish is father to the thought, there is no doubt that inside the government the expectation now is that business will trend upward.

The promise that finances of the government are in such shape that a surplus for the next fiscal year of $200,000,000 is assured means more than all the predictions made by members of congress and others in the last few months.

Now that the June income tax payments have been made, the president has secured all the official data from the treasury. Political leaders of all parties are agreed that a tax bill will go through congress without fail, in time to benefit the taxpayers when they make out their returns next March on money being earned this year.

The only question now is what rates shall be applied. Big business is not altogether sure that the drive for a lower surtax rate will be successful but the confidence hereabouts that such will be the result is unbounded. In other words, the biggest tax reduction yet made will come in the next tax law. Under the circumstances, businessmen who have been hesitant about expansion need hesitate no longer for they can figure on a maximum surtax of 30 per cent and very likely as low as 25.

DAWES CHARGES VOTE BARTERING

Vice President Says Change of Senate Rules Would Stop Legislative Trades

By Associated Press
Manchester, N. H.—Vice President Dawes, in an address before the Manchester Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night said:

"The purpose of a reform in the present senate rules is not to deprive the minority of an opportunity to be fully heard upon every public question or to deprive them of any of their constitutional rights.

"The purpose is to take away from the minority the right to hold up the majority, which continually results in legislative trades and barter not in the interest of the public good.

"These barterers are made in large part secretly. There is no merit in the claim that the right of unlimited debate and absence of proper closure bring complete publicity into the business of the senate. On the contrary, it results in the necessity for the majority in secret time and time again, to buy off the minority or individuals by concessions in legislative transactions, many of which could not endure publicity without reflecting upon the motives of those exacting them.

"Threats to hold up the business of the senate unless concessions are made in legislation in which individual senators have a political interest, have been openly and successfully made on the floor of the senate itself."

COOLIDGE ARRIVES AT SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

By Associated Press
Swampscott, Mass.—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived here Wednesday for a vacation that is expected to continue through the summer.

The special train on which the presidential party traveled from Washington arrived at Salem at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. The president motored to Swampscott for breakfast at the home of his friend, Frank W. Stearns.

It is probable that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will spend a day or two as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stearns before taking over the "summer white house."

NAVY COMMANDS RADIO BE USED ON ARCTIC TRIP

Secretary Issues Ultimatum That May Result in Recall of Expedition

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—After the navy department had threatened Wednesday to withdraw from participation in the MacMillan arctic expedition, the National Geographic society, joint sponsor of the undertaking, announced that an agreement had been reached and the expedition would be carried through as planned.

The equipment, consisting of long wave apparatus is being rushed to Sydney, Nova Scotia, where the Peary is anchored, by the United States destroyer Putnam. Commander Byrd is heading the navy detachment with the expedition. Commander Byrd is on the Bowdoin, the second ship of the expedition, which is enroute to Sydney. Both the Bowdoin and the Putnam are due at Sydney Wednesday.

The ultimatum of Secretary Wilbur was in the form of an order to Commander Byrd, which said:

"Planes will not make flight away from vicinity of base ship until spark set is installed to insure communication with planes and to give compass bearings to planes originally agreed upon. Inform MacMillan of department's decision which is for the purpose of safeguarding planes and personnel. If these instructions cannot be complied with arrange to land planes and personnel at Sydney for return to United States."

THREATENS 50 YEARS FOR WOMAN KIDNAPPER

New York—Convicted of kidnapping 3-year old Raimonde VonMalski, Mrs. Mary Jones has until Friday to disclose what she did with the boy or receive the maximum punishment—imprisonment for 10 to 50 years.

The boy vanished three months ago and is presumed to be dead. Judge Collins warned Mrs. Jones that if she did not reveal what became of the boy he would give her "the limit."

The state's evidence was circumstantial. It contended that the lad was kidnapped for revenge against the Malskis, who took into their home her husband from whom Mrs. Jones is separated. Mrs. Jones is 40 years old. Mrs. Jones, the only defense witness, offered an uncorroborated alibi. She denied telling an Egyptian steamship fireman of her willingness to pay $100 to anybody who would kill Von Malski. She said she had been married three times and that her first two husbands had disappeared.

BOARD DROPS PROBE, CALLS AFFAIR BUNK

Senators Protest Collapse of Inquiry but Adopt Committee Report 18-2

BLAINE "WHITEWASHED"

Severson and Garey Lock Horns in Attack on Investigating Solons

By Associated Press
Madison—Collapse of the special senatorial investigation inquiring into reports of official misconduct in state office, and the presentation of a "makeshift" report to the senate brought forth a storm of protest from senators, rated as friends and foes of the resolution that brought on the investigation.

Senator Alva E. Garey, administration floor leader, who introduced the resolution calling for the investigation and named the committee which was to undertake the inquiry, was among the loudest in voicing his protest against what he termed an unfinished job and a virtual refusal of the committee to go on with investigation of new information furnished by Senator H. J. Severson. His attack was principally directed against Senator William F. Quirk, chairman of the committee. Senator Quirk replied vigorously and stated that the information furnished earlier in the inquiry was "pure bunk" and that which was furnished later "not worth investigation." The report, adopted 18 to 2, was concise, and to the point that there was no evidence sufficient to bring a finding that any state official or employee had been guilty of any misconduct of any kind.

EXONERATE BLAINE
Specifically, the report recited: That Governor John J. Blaine was making independent investigation of the charge that a woman inmate of a state penal institution was about to become a mother and that a state official was responsible for her condition.

That the governor was justified in denying requisition for a state employee indicted several years ago in Iowa.

That there have been no violations of the state civil service law. With reference to the charge that members of the legislature through unlawful compacts and agreements have been prevented from voting and have been spirited away, the committee found no evidence to substantiate the charge. No evidence was found by the committee to substantiate the charge that members of the legislature were promised jobs or other consideration for their votes on important measures.

No evidence of graft of any kind was found, the report stated.

Methods of paroling prisoners for work on a farm operated by a brother-in-law of the estate parole agent were found to be regular and not subject to criticism.

Following the reading of the report, Senators Garey, Schumann, and Cashman, attacked it as not a thorough inquiry. Its completion being hurried to coincide with the adjournment of the legislative session.

TWO DISSENT
Senators Garey and Severson on opposing sides during the entire investigation by a strange coincidence were the only senators voting against adoption of the report.

Senator Garey, in attacking the report, declared he was satisfied in so far as it vindicated the civil service of which he is the secretary, but he believed the committee had left untouched a number of charges made by Senator Severson. He referred to a letter from the senator attached to the report, which Senator Severson asked the committee to go into other matters of reported misconduct in state office come to his attention. Senator Severson severely scored Senator Garey for his attack on the committee and its report. He said in part:

"The presiding officer should have appointed this committee. But Senator Garey insisted on choosing the 'jury' himself. He goes out and picks the 'jury' then he condemns the 'jury' and says it is no good. This is a most peculiar position for him to be in."

Senator W. L. Smith said, "this report proves my earlier assertion that the committee would have investigated the 'investigator' (Severson). I charge that Senator Garey did not allow all the evidence to come before the committee. What chance was given this committee to die down and uncover things? Was the committee given that power? The fault is not with the committee but with the senate."

It is the gift of C. W. Nash, Kenosha, and was erected at a cost of $22,000.

Dedication services will be held early in the season with Mr. Nash present. The new lodge increases the camp capacity from 100 to 150 boys.

This capacity will be of great advantage as boys are taken for a two-week period from June 30 to Sept. 4. This season is divided into five periods, so that 250 more boys will be accommodated. The camp is directed by W. H. Wones, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

EKERN'S EXONERATION

The senate committee which has been investigating the charges made against Attorney-General Ekern by Insurance Commissioner Smith has completely exonerated the attorney-general. This report was forecast by the evidence as it was produced. On the testimony Mr. Ekern was entitled to a clean bill of health. There was no proof that he had lobbied for insurance companies or that he had charged the state for expenses to insurance conventions.

It was shown that Mr. Ekern while attorney-general has maintained a partnership and has practiced in that capacity. It was also shown, however, that he had not used his private practice in any way detrimental to the interests of the state. The committee in its report makes this statement: "Since becoming attorney-general Mr. Ekern has not handled insurance matters adverse to state interests in such matters."

In keeping up his private practice while serving as attorney-general Mr. Ekern followed a precedent, long established in Wisconsin. We think, however, this practice should be discontinued, and agree with the separate recommendation to this effect made by Senator Titus. The representation in a legal way of private clients may not conflict with the duties of an attorney-general, and again it may. The possibility of such a conflict should be removed, even the possibility of inadvertently serving a client contrary to the obligations of public trust.

Attorneys general should devote their entire time to business of the state. It is an office of first importance and the duties are so extensive as to require deputies. The more time the attorney-general himself gives to the responsibilities of this position, the better they will be discharged. If the salary is insufficient to properly compensate the services rendered, it should be increased.

NEW BLOOD IN RAILROAD MANAGEMENT

The shake-up in the management of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, by which President Wm. H. Finley and Marvin Huggitt, Sr., chairman of the board since 1910, are retired, was not unexpected. For a number of years the Northwestern has been slipping. The explanation commonly accepted was that this was due principally to the severe competition all railroads were undergoing from motor vehicular transportation, which particularly applied to sections like Wisconsin where the development of hard surfaced roads had reached a high state and where tourist travel was extensive.

The change in management has been made on the theory that new blood was needed in the operation of the road, the officials retiring having served it for many years and belonging temperamentally at least to the old school of railway executives. How much of the Northwestern's slump in business has been due to the competition of motor vehicles and how much to lack of aggressive and modern enterprise should be determined by the new policies about to be inaugurated. The Northwestern is one of the strongest and soundest railroad systems in the United States. Its service has always been of a high order and it is a vital element in the prosperity and development of the large commercial, industrial and agricultural area it served. Its own prosperity is essential to the interests of the Northwest, and it is to be hoped that whatever policies are adopted by the new management will be for the best and for the improvement of the property.

The changes should not be looked upon as casting a reflection upon the retiring officers, under whose direction the Northwestern for many years established a high reputation in the railroad world. It marks the period of the history of every undertaking when the old must give way to the new. Fred W. Sargent, who becomes the new head of the system, is an able executive and his past record indicates that a wise selection has been made.

THE RICHTER CASE

There is no joy to anyone in the misfortunes of any particular individual, but there must be great satisfaction to the public when an institution like the supreme court of Wisconsin so courageously meets its obligations even in the performance of disagreeable duties, as was evidenced in the judgment of that court handed down Tuesday concerning Arthur W. Richter, a Milwaukee attorney of no mean prominence. The ruling of the supreme court is refreshing evidence of the high standard to which it will hold practicing attorneys and the stern manner with which it will deal with those who do not live-up to those standards.

In defending a lawsuit commenced by a woman at Milwaukee, Mr. Richter put into the pleadings which he drew a statement or allegation that the contract upon which the woman was suing was illegal upon immoral grounds. When the case was tried, no attempt even was made by Mr. Richter to establish the statement in his pleadings. The conclusion was unavoidable that the statement was put into the pleadings for the purpose of shaming and intimidating the woman to dismiss her action and give up her claim rather than be smeared in court with a charge so repulsive to a woman, one involving her character.

When the circuit court at Milwaukee defeated Mr. Richter in the action, he appealed the case to the supreme court and personally argued it. Immediately following the argument, the supreme court made the case an exception to the general rule of considering a case for several weeks and decided it off the bench and upon its own motion directed Mr. Richter to show cause why he should not be disbarred for his connection with the affair. The disbarment resulted. The supreme court scathingly says of Mr. Richter: "His willingness to prostitute the forms of law and defile the judicial process is perfectly apparent. He has flouted the obligations which he assumed by the taking of his oath of admission to the bar in the most flagrant and shameless manner."

Further on in the opinion the court indicates its idea of the proper place of an attorney in the investigation and handling of litigation when it says of Mr. Richter:

How can a man who thus conducts himself be a proper person to guide those unlearned in the law and to act as their friend and counselor? Would a suggestion on the part of a client that untruthful testimony be produced be rebuked by an attorney who had no regard for his own oath? Can it be otherwise than that the fountain of justice is poisoned at its source if men of this character are permitted to direct the course of judicial proceedings?

Men of the Richter stamp have long had a deadening effect upon the proper administration of justice by not only encouraging false testimony as is indicated by the court's opinion, but in actually suggesting, shaping and directing it. It is just as improper to make charges against an adversary, and particularly charges of immorality, where the attorney making the charges either knows them to be untrue or never expects to produce evidence to substantiate them. It is men of this character who have helped to bring the administration of the law into disrepute.

It is the men of the character of the Supreme Court judges who give the people fresh and wholesome confidence in the integrity of courts and a fair administration of the law.

WHAT'S THE USE SWEATING?

Nothing of consequence is secreted (eliminated or thrown off) by the skin in health or sickness, except salt and water.

That is an undebatable physiological fact. Nothing of consequence means nothing that any body need worry about. If you should suppress sweating altogether by coating the skin with some impervious substance like varnish, you would probably suffer seriously or perhaps fatally but not from poisoning of your system by the retained "waste matter." There is a legend associated with Leonardo da Vinci, according to which a boy whose skin had been gilded for some pageant of spectacle died, and generally the fatal result is attributed to the poisoning of the system by the retention of waste matter which should have been carried off by the sweat. But that is a wrong theory, as has been proved by scientific investigation. While it is true that a trifling amount of waste matter is excreted in the sweat, in fact a trace of nearly every kind of waste matter which is eliminated through the kidneys, still the quantity of such waste matter thrown off by the skin in health or in sickness is so small that it is insignificant.

If more than half of the body surface of any warm blooded animal be varnished or coated with any impervious material the animal soon dies. A rabbit will die if more than one-fourth of the body surface is so varnished. The fatal result is due, however, to excessive radiation of heat from the varnished surface, so that the temperature of the animal falls until it is as low as 70 degrees F. just before death. Now if the temperature of the varnished animal is kept up to or near the normal 98.6 degrees F. by artificial means, no untoward result occurs from the varnishing. This proves that the elimination of waste matter is not an important function of the skin.

I've always seemed to take a queer view of body washing, and some squeamish if not well informed people have concluded that I do not quite understand the importance of cleanliness. But some people, you see, take a much dirtier view of the human skin than I do. They like to think of it as an excretory organ, an emunctory, a fact which I believe is not well known to everybody's health and pocketbook, for everybody to know: The skin is to all practical purposes not an excretory organ and neither waste matter nor poison nor foul substance of any kind are thrown off by the skin or in the sweat in health or in sickness.

Students of physics assure me that heat is much more rapidly dissipated or radiated from a moist surface from which water evaporates than it is from a smooth dry varnished surface, and hence they can understand the animal experiment cited above. I am not a physicist and cannot explain the physics of the phenomenon, but it strikes me that the painted and varnished or gilded radiator radiates heat effectively enough. As these physics students see it, the rabbit ought to develop an increase in body temperature—but the rabbit seems to have the habit of doing just the opposite.

But mind you, I do not assume that sweating does one, no good. On the contrary, wait until I tell you about it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What is saltmeter used for, and is it infurious? (J. R. E.)

Answer: Saltmeter, niter, potassium nitrate, is seldom used medicinally, except in niter paper, made by dipping unsized papers in a solution of one part of saltmeter in five parts of water and drying. The paper is rolled into a cigar and smoked for the relief of asthma. It is burned in a dish and the fumes inhaled. Saltmeter is often used in the brine for salting and pickling meats, because it brings out the red color. It is harmless when used. The myth associated with the use of saltmeter in army or navy to influence moral conduct is just a myth. (Copyright National Newspaper Service.)

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Wednesday, June 27, 1900.

At a meeting of Riverview Golf club last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dickinson the name was changed to Riverview Country club. A new clubhouse was decided upon by the club to be built on the point of land on the river bank. A committee was appointed to arrange for activities July 4, consisting of C. S. Dickinson, R. L. SHE NEEDED THE CHANGE

Sing a song of exasperation,
Pocket full of cash,

A number of Wisconsin furniture manufacturers have pleaded guilty to violation of the anti-trust laws. That may have an effect upon the crop of June brides, as those fines are likely to increase the price of furniture.

Just another week left in June and soon will be the golden opportunity for another twelve months—the opportunity of getting married in June.

It is a little hard on June bridegrooms to have the wedding come in the month when the second installment of the income tax is due.

A Detroit man sold his wife for a dollar. That shows that pre-war prices have not yet come down.

EPITAPHY

Dog at on a railroad track
Amidst an awful fog,
Along came the engine,
Toot! toot! Bow-wow! Hot dog!

We know a man who was a firm believer in heredity when he had his youthful fling. His belief in heredity was confirmed when he got married and everybody complimented him on his baby. Lately the boy flunked in high school. The father no longer believes in heredity. To what would you attribute the boy's failure? To environment?

Next month the favorite remark of the bride will be "Will you leave me a few cents for groceries." By July of next year the favorite remark of the husband will be, "What will I do for carfare?"

We know why weddings are so popular in June. July is too warm for two persons to sit in the same chair. And May is too cold a month in which to hang out the porch hammock.

Remember the two pages full of tax notices the county treasurer used to publish in our paper? Well, seeing this is meant to be a cheerful paper, we have prevailed upon the management and the treasurer to quit publishing those notices—at least during the month of June.

COMMON SENSE

Common sense is good to have,
But never let it master you.
For then it would deprive you of
The foolish things it's fun to do.

About the best advice we can give a man who wants to steer clear of the red matrimonial light of June is to kiss a girl when she doesn't want to be kissed, or not to kiss her when she wants to be kissed.

The June bridegroom has learned by this time that while getting mad at her is bad, making up after the quarrel is very expensive.

ROLLO

LYING WITNESS

Perjuror Doesn't Sweat and Present Quivering Lip When He Gets on Stand

Arthur Train, in The American Magazine.

Most folks suppose that the perjurer is likely to give some telltale symptom, and that lawyers are full of sharp tricks to show him up. This is true only of witnesses of the low type of intelligence. Once a keen or an educated type of liar has decided that it is worth while to take the chance of being convicted of perjury, he will swear your life away gladly, gayly, and convincingly. He is the most assured and accurate of witnesses.

The liar on the witness stand is not self-conscious by quivering lip and sweat-spangled brow. Not a bit of it! He is the one fellow who doesn't sweat. This sweater is the honest witness who is trying to recall exactly what happened, and is having a hard time doing it under the badgering of the opposing attorney. The honest witness cares; the liar doesn't.

The human face is the part of the human body most subject to habitual control. If you want to find out whether or not a man is lying you would do well to look at his feet and hands. Watch the fingers of a liar, and see how they twitch! Naturally, anybody's fingers may twitch from nervousness also. But tension due to the chance of being proved a perjurer will show somewhere. The liar tries instinctively to overcome this by gripping the arms of the chair in which he sits, or by clasping his hands. He is used to controlling his face, but not his extremities. Dislocate his hands from the chair or from each other, and you will have him at a disadvantage. Over and over again I have seen shrewd and complacent witnesses lose their self-possession when told to unclasp their hands, or take them out of their pockets.

I do not mean to suggest that the truth can ever be ascertained by the badgering or bullying of a person. It never pays to bully anybody. It merely arouses antagonism and leads to an even greater stubbornness on the part of the person bullied. I never knew anything to be gained by what is called "the third degree."

CERTAIN DYES IRRITATE HYPERSENSITIVE SKINS

Dr. Kaufmann, in Neues Wiener Journal, Vienna.

A dermatologist who told of an incident which happened a few years before the war. One day an old Russian baron came to him to get advice about a skin disease. The fashionable patient wore an elegant fur coat with a fur collar and said that he suffered from an annoying itching about the neck and face. The skin disease always started at the beginning of the cold season; hence he could not stand the winters in Moscow and regularly went to the Riviera.

At that time the baron was in a central German town on business. An early winter had surprised him there and immediately his skin had become irritated. The physician gave him no medicines but advised him to purchase a new fur coat. The baron would be able to stand any sort of climate.

Indeed the skin disease was not caused by the cold but simply by a dye which is often used for furs. Such cases happened to be known to the physician so that he could at once diagnose the case. The dye is

The Question Box

When in doubt—ask Haskin. He offers himself as a target for the questions of our readers. He agrees to furnish facts for all who ask. This is a large contract—one that has never been filled before. It would be possible only in Washington, and only to one who has spent a lifetime in locating sources of information. Haskin does not know all the things that people ask him, but he knows people who do know. Try him. State your question briefly, write plainly, and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. Q. Was the tax paid on the tea that the "Peggy Steuart" brought to Annapolis? W. S. B.

A. Anthony Steuart paid the tax on the tea that the "Peggy Steuart" brought from England, and to appease wrath of the citizens, set fire to his ship and burned it on October 19, 1774.

Q. How cold is ice? M. O. M.

A. Ice is merely water that is below 32 degrees F. in temperature. Ice becomes much colder in extremely cold climates.

Q. What happens to wool when it shrinks? W. W.

A. The tiny scales of which wool fibres are made, overlap and become shorter. Rubbing will cause this and subjecting wool garments to very hot not at all a poisonous material. Any other person might have worn the fur coat without noticing any evil effects.

During the last years of the war, when goods were manufactured of lower grade materials, such skin diseases increased everywhere. During the last few years these cases have decreased in number but hypersensitive people like the Russian baron will always catch and always suffer.

or very cold water also makes them shrink.

Q. In what part of the United States is the most stone quarried? C. E. S.

A. The Geological Survey says that the largest quarry center in the United States, if not in the world, for the production of building stone is the Bedford-Bloomington oolitic limestone district of Lawrence and Monroe counties in Indiana.

Q. Who has taken the place of Gutzon Borglum in charge of the Confederate Memorial on Stone Mountain? T. A. C.

A. He has been succeeded by Augustus Lukeman.

Q. Please send me a complete list of camping grounds for tourists. E. V. P.

A. The number is increasing so rapidly that it is impossible to keep a list up-to-date. The Automobile Club in any city could furnish lists in its vicinity. Camping sites are well marked along the highways, so that directions are not often necessary.

Q. What States produces the most salt? E. R. L.

A. Michigan leads in salt production. How did Karakul get its name? U. R.

A. The Karakul sheep takes its name from Kara Kul (black lake), a village in the eastern part of Bokhara, a Province in Central Asia. This Province, which is a protectorate of the Russian Empire, comprises about 35,000 square miles. The number of sheep in this territory is estimated at 4,000,000 to 4,000,000 and the annual exports of lambskins are known to average about 1,500,000.

Q. Is the Pacific coast of the United States as long as the Atlantic? G. S. T.

A. On the Pacific, our coast line is 13,661 miles; on the Atlantic, 10,885.

Q. What was the cubic displacement of the motors used in the Speedway Race at Indianapolis on Decoration Day? H. F. H.

A. The Indianapolis Motor Speedway Association says that the cubic displacement of the motors used in the International Auto Race was 122 cubic inches and under.

Q. What is the origin of the expression "We who are about to die, salute you"? A. L. S.

A. Gladstone who had entered the ring to entertain the Emperor Claudius greeted him with these words.

Q. In summertime our front porch is covered with caterpillars. Could they come from large old trees in the yard? E. E. A.

A. The caterpillars probably do come from the trees. Examine them and if you find caterpillars spray the trees with a poison spray, such as this: arsenate of lead, 3 pounds; lime, 2 pounds; water 100 gallons.

Q. What was manna? E. B. H.

A. According to the Scriptures, manna was food of the Israelites for 40 years. The "food" was gathered every morning, every man gathered what he needed for his family, and when it was eaten, it was gone. It is described in the Bible as "food from heaven" and "bread of the mighty." No substance is known which in any degree satisfied all the requirements of the Scriptural references but one proposed is to identify manna with a lichen which grows upon the limestone in the Arabian and other deserts. The older masses become detached and are rolled about by the wind. When swept about by the sudden rain-storms in the rainy season, they can be collected in large heaps. It is a form of nourishment in the desert, especially when eaten with the sugary manna from the trees.

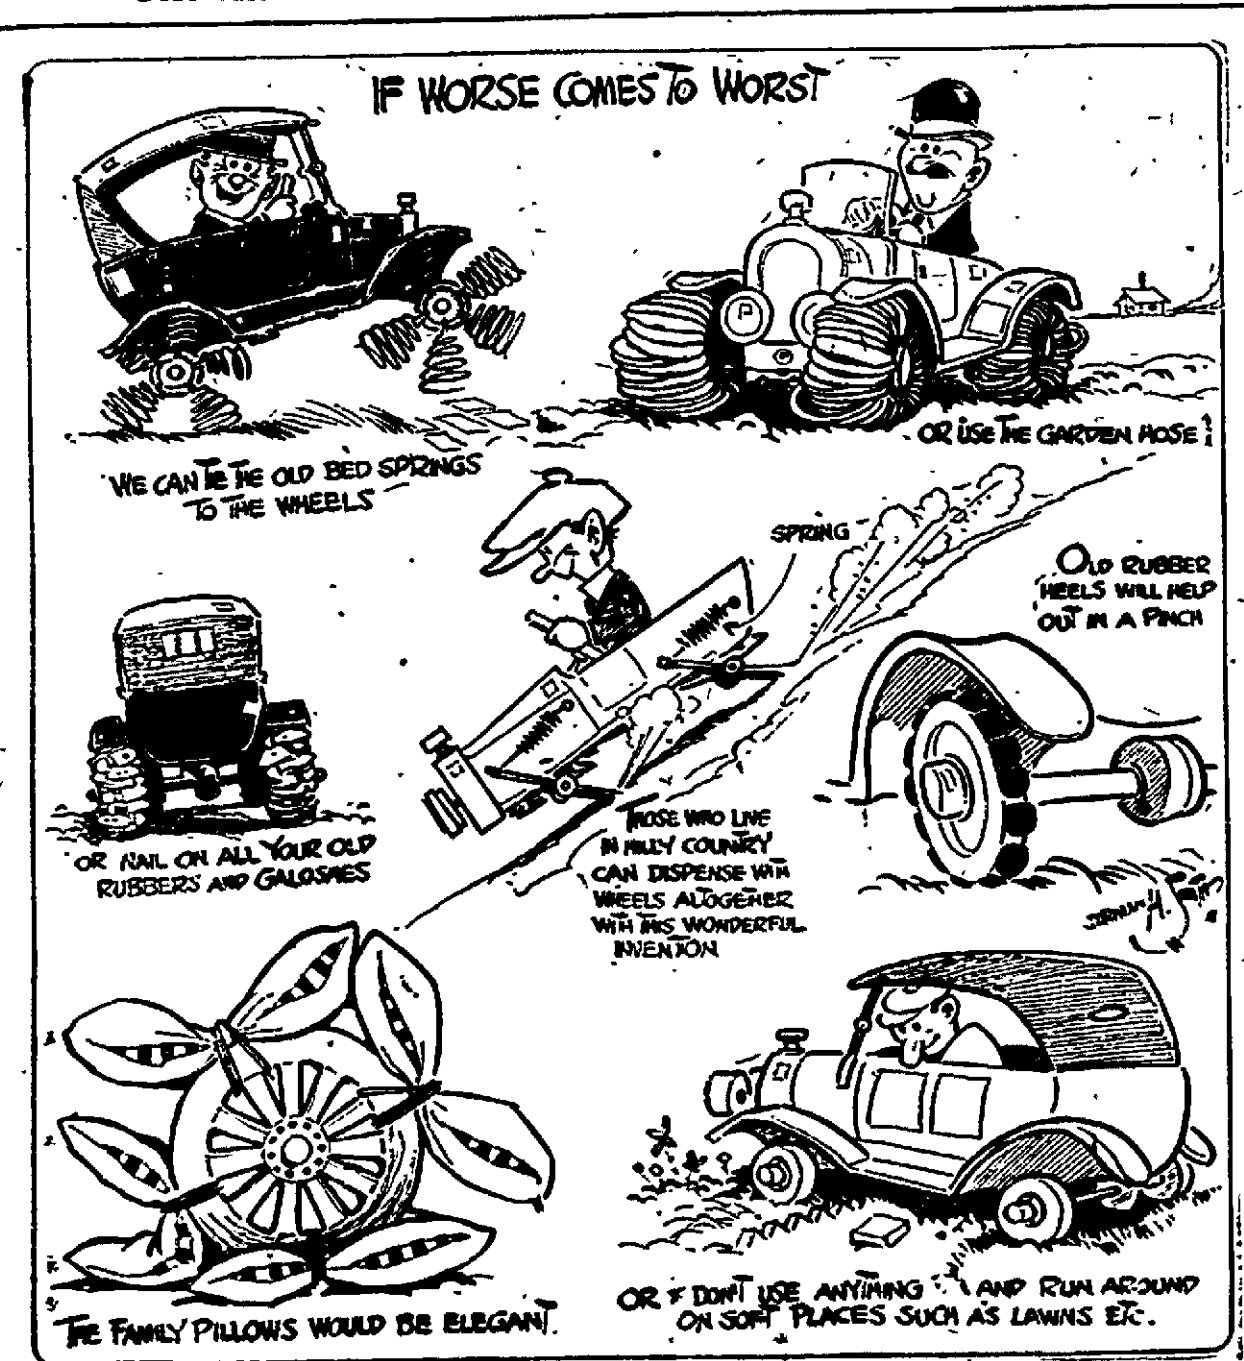

Q. Why is baking soda used with sour milk and baking powder with sweet milk? R. E. H.

A. Sour milk is used with baking soda because sour milk contains lactic acid, which acid in the presence of moisture will liberate carbon dioxide gas from the soda. This gas leavens the product in which it is used. Baking powder consists of bicarbonate of soda and some acid present will liberate the carbon dioxide from the soda and hence the sour milk is superfluous.

Q. Was the old West Theatre the first theatre in Annapolis, Maryland? N. A. B.

A. The West Theatre was opened February 18, 1768. It has been often erroneously called "the first theatre in Annapolis" but it was preceded by two theatres, one in 1752 and another in 1760. It is not known where these theatres were located but the Maryland Gazette has preserved the record of their existence.

HOW SHIP CANAL
GOT ITS STARTContinuous Waterway from Lakes to Wisconsin River
Conceived by Green Bay
Man

Kaukauna—It is a general belief among many Kaukauna residents that the transportation canal, often called the government canal, was originally built by the United States government. John D. Lawe of this city, is authority for the statement that such was not the case at all at the present time the canal as well as most of the navigable waters of the Fox river are under government control.

As early as 1846 before Wisconsin became a state, a man living in Green Bay conceived the idea of creating a continuous waterway from the Great Lakes to the Mississippi. This man was Morgan L. Martin, who represented Wisconsin territory in the federal house of representatives from about 1846 to 1850. During that time Mr. Martin introduced a bill asking for funds to build the canal but was given little encouragement.

Finally Mr. Martin succeeded in obtaining a small appropriation together with control of alternate sections of land along the Fox river. It was believed that the sale of those sections would realize enough funds to carry through the project.

The Fox River Improvement company was formed and in 1851 construction of the local canal was started. The first steamer passed through in the fall of 1855. A toll of 25 cents for each foot of water was charged for each lock. At that time there were 18 locks between Neenah and Green Bay which made the toll a big item of expense to boats and travelers.

A canal of about a mile long near Portage City from the head waters of the Wolf river to those of the Wisconsin river completed the waterway from the Mississippi to the Great Lakes. This work was completed about the same year by the improvement company.

The company, however, was unable to maintain the property and it was transferred to the state and later to the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal Co. The canal company also gave up the attempt to maintain the waterway and finally sold out to the government for a handsome sum but retained all water power rights along the river.

The power dam which furnishes power for the local railroad shops was built by the improvement company to furnish water for the canal and it was a matter of about 1870 that it became of use for power.

During later years through traffic to the Mississippi was discontinued after it was found necessary to frequently dredge the river near Portage to keep it navigable. Today the local transportation canal is used only by coal barges which ply from Green Bay to cities along the shores of Lake Winnebago.

Before the construction of the canal here the river was a rapid from a point a short distance above the present dam down as far as the present location of the Patten Paper Co. mill. The river makes a drop of 51 feet according to figures presented by government surveyors. Although dangerous the rapids were used regularly for traffic by pioneer trappers and fur dealers.

At the time of the construction of the canal Kaukauna was composed of a small group of houses on the north side while Appleton consisted only of two log cabins on what is now known as Stroeb's point.

STAGE
SCREEN

CINEMA VERSION OF PLAY IS DI-RECTORIAL TRIUMPH

Another phase of the curiously all-embracing understanding of James Cruze, "The Covered Wagon" director, is revealed in "The Goose Hangs High" which he has just completed for Paramount. It is a picturization of the well known stage play by Lewis Beach, Walter Woods and Anthony Coldewey collaborated on the screen adaptation.

"A timely story and a tender charming one." That is the unanimous verdict of those privileged few who reviewed the film prior to its general release. The plot revolves around the Christmas-time home-coming of a small-town American family in which parents and children find themselves at cross purposes, but when disaster threatens the children prove loyal.

The picture has moments of intense pathos and reaction in which there are literally tears of joy. It proves more fully Cruze's tremendous knowledge of that abstract thing called human nature.

What is certain to impress the average picture-goer is the utter absence of the usual movie banalities. The story develops naturally and logically; there is no straining after effect and the characters act like human beings. From start to finish the screen play is chock-full of those homey incidents familiar to all.

As usual, Cruze has assembled a grade-A cast of capable players whose acting, individually and collectively, is worthy of the highest praise. Those featured are Constance Bennett, Myrtle Steadman, Esther Ralston, George Irving and Edward Peil, Jr.

Also Ralph Graves in "He Who Gets Smacked," latest News Reel and Felix Cat Cartoon. Now showing at Fischer's Appleton theatre.

"PLAYING WITH SOULS"

Countess de Chambrun's vivid analysis of the domestic tragedies that often lie behind the Wall Street dollar mark, which has made her novel "Playing With Souls" an international success, is now on the screen.

The picture, with Jacqueline Logan, Clive Brook, Mary Astor and William Collier, Jr., heading an elaborate cast, is showing for the last time tonight at the Elite theatre.

The countess, a sister of Congressman Nicholas Longworth, whose wife is the former Alice Roosevelt, has written from an intimate, behind-the-scenes knowledge of American society life, and her story is said to be that of the actual disruption of a New York home of stupendous wealth.

The trouble, as the story points out, arises from the fact that the man is too busy doubling and redoubling his wealth and his wife is too much engrossed in pursuit of society frivolous for either to fulfill their home obligations.

Thus the tragedy—their baby son grows to manhood without knowing either of his parents.

A MOVIE STORY,
BUT DIFFERENT FROM THE REST

"Minnie Flynn" Is Interesting
Tale of Hollywood Personages

BY ELEANOR WING

Another movie story? But one told from the heart of the movie world, and not from an onlooker's viewpoint. Frances Marion, the author of "Minnie Flynn," published by Boni and Liveright, has written a novel about personages of Hollywood, with a sincerity and honesty that are unmistakable. One does not feel that she is looking at the moth-like inhabitants of a glittering, unreal world with intolerance and lack of sympathy. Undoubtedly, she is kindly disposed toward the creatures, even though they have shaped their wings. Minnie Flynn, the heroine of the tale is a common little beauty, whose one excuse for fame is a lovely face. But she arouses loyalty in the men with whom she comes into contact. And in her futile, drab way, plays fair.

But, the heroine is not the highlight of the book. Hal Dean, the quiet, artistic director who senses the role Minnie is able to play in picturedom, is the character who grows with each page and develops as Minnie's disintegrates under the too-powerful, disintegrating force of the world's applause. Here is a remarkable character because he is finest under pressure of misfortune. His portraiture is fine and clear as the author draws him, and the contrast between his reticent strength and Minnie's meteoric charm is splendid.

One suspects that the moral which is never deeply hidden in any story or movie, concerning Hollywood, is very near "Miss Marion's heart. She has probably thought often of Kipling's

"If you can meet with triumph and disaster,
And treat these two imposters just the same!"

because she is almost bitter as she speaks about the inevitable decline which follows the unbelievable swift fame and acclamation which is accorded each movie star who captures the fickle eyes of the moviegoing world for a few months.

And Miss Marion mourns, maternally, for a deluded Minnie Flynn, who has been caught in the mesh of movie intrigues far too subtle for a Flynn brain to fathom. How is an ordinary tinsel-loving Minnie to know that the rose of the great satin-clad lady are not for the great, satiated, shabby audience delights in her gum chewing, black velvet, tam-o-shanter characterizations; and hopes breathlessly, that the policeman will not be too cruel to her, when he comes home on a Saturday night, inevitably drunk.

All of the tragedy of fame and its rapid loss is sketched marvelously by Miss Marion. Readers nowadays dislike moral lessons, but sometimes when skillfully concealed in plot with the sugar coating of movie plotting, even the most bitter lessons are not hard to swallow.

Senders of C. O. D. and domestic insurance parcels through the United States mails must guarantee return postage in case they are undeliverable, according to a ruling of the post department at Washington, D. C. which will go into effect on Aug. 1. All such packages should bear a signed guarantee that the sender will pay return postage if necessary, in addition to the regular card bearing the sender's return address.

In another bulletin the post office department calls attention to the fact that parcels marked "insured" but not insured by the post office, are unavailable. The stamp is invalid if the parcel is protected only by commercial insurance. Firms who use their own "insured" stamps should confer with their local postmasters before having the stamps made, so that these may be uniform with the post office stamps.

Minister Wins Hollywood Trip For Reviewing Novel

The Rev. Rupert Holloway, Unitarian minister of Bloomington, Illinois, has been awarded the prize of a trip to Hollywood, California, offered by the publishers this spring for the best review of "The Skyrocket," Adela Rogers St. Johns' novel of the film studios. And that extraordinary section of American life today—the motion-picture world—will be viewed by him some time this summer.

Like a sojourner from another planet, Mr. Holloway will bring the detachment not only of a mid-Western churchman but of an Englishman to his critical observation of the Hollywood scene. For Mr. Holloway was born at Shrewsbury, on the Welsh border and after some years in governmental service in London came to this country in 1914. He completed his education at the University of Chicago and has since been in the ministry. He will soon take out his final papers for United States citizenship.

Though married and with three charming children, he declares that the winning of "The Skyrocket" Contest is the most exciting event of his life. He has never been to California, and in fact, has seen almost nothing of America.

Because he is more interested in life than in death and because he finds that novelists can tell him much about living.

THE REV. RUPERT HOLLOWAY

ing. It is Mr. Holloway's custom to preach sermons upon popular novels and that is why his attention was called to "The Skyrocket"—a book which is, in itself, he says, "as fine a sermon as one could wish to find."

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

WHO IS A "TYPICAL AMERICAN?"

A writer should never be held responsible for the things his publisher says about him in the "blurb" on the jacket of his book. It is well known that those notices are often written by persons who have not read more than ten paragraphs of the book itself. Almost every author at one time or another suffers from this practice and perhaps still oftener writers suffer from too great praise. When a prospective reader sees on the jacket of the book that it is "the greatest novel of this generation" he may be pardoned for taking the attitude, "All right, come on and show me." The result of that mental challenge is almost always disastrous to the luckless author.

The publisher of Lee J. Smith's novel, "The Spring Flight," to which I called attention in this department some time ago, has not much given to this practice of overdoing the "blurb." But the every first sentence of the notice on the jacket of that book reads: "This is the intimate record, realistically presented, of the adolescence, youth and early manhood of a very typical American."

JUST THE OPPOSITE

But if Kenneth Farr, as described by Smith in "The Spring Flight" is a typical American boy, youth and young man, then I don't know what the phrase "typical American" means. It is not at all to the discredit of Lee J. Smith, that Kenneth Farr is not a "typical American." I am very certain that he had no intention of presenting a "typical American." On the contrary, if words as they are usually understood mean anything it seems to me he intended very definitely to present a young fellow who departed very far from the American type.

It may be objected that America is so vast a country and there is such great variety in the racial groups that inhabit it that almost anybody could be considered a "typical American." No matter what strange ideas anyone may carry about in his head he is almost sure to run true to the type of some fairly large group of Americans.

But that is substituting sophistry for common sense. Ninety-nine per cent out of a hundred would understand by the phrase "typical American" a person who has had a more or less conventional home and school training, who conforms to a reasonable degree to the current notions about morality, sex, government, home, family, business, etc. Probably most people would agree that President Coolidge is a fair example of what is meant by the phrase "typical American," or his late opponent John W. Davis, or Herbert Hoover, to mention only names that are well known. There are literally millions of Americans who haven't the prominence of these men and who perhaps have not their ability and also a considerable number who haven't their prominence but greater ability—yet all of them have fundamentally the same attitude toward life that these men have. There are wide differences of opinion but there is a fundamental sameness or outlook that we recognize as typically American."

FARR A VAGABOND

But, the Kenneth Farr of Lee J. Smith's story is striking just because he is not a "typical American." He

TREAT WOOD TO KEEP OUT ANTS. INSPECTOR SAYS

Crescote is the surest weapon against the termites or flying ants that are beginning to make their annual appearance here with the approach of hot weather, according to George Peotter, city building inspector. These ants may do hundreds of dollars worth of damage to a new house in a few years, it is said, by burrowing into the wood. Therefore all wood that comes into contact with the ground should be treated with coal tar crescote before it is used.

Even brick and mortar succumb to the ants' attacks after a few years. This may be prevented by facing foundations with cement or concrete. While the termites can not be driven out of their habitations in wood by means of insecticides or fumigation, they can be killed off by introducing concrete or treated wood. Insulation between the building and the grounds at all foundation or post contacts, because they can not live without the moisture that may be secured through their passageways into ground.

Another Fox Farm

Random Lake will have a new silver-black fox farm in the near future, according to information emanating from the U. S. Consolidated Fox and Fur corporation. The corporation last week sold 21 pairs of foxes to a group at Random Lake, which plans to go into the business on a large scale as soon as arrangements are completed for housing the foxes.

is a kind of physical, mental and spiritual vagabond, apart from the American herd, striking out into paths of his own, definitely rejecting the "current platitudes" and taking delight in revolt. Does the typical American regard business satirically? Then that would be the sense in studies like "Rabbit?"

It would be worthwhile for a writer to portray the boyhood, youth and young manhood of a "very typical American." Such a study could be full of interest—tracing the life story for instance of the young fellow in your own town who has sold you life insurance, or of the barber who shaves you, or of the young business man who sits next you at Monday lunch club, or of any other one of dozens of average persons you know. But the Kenneth Farr of Lee Smith's story was not at all typical; you might hunt for a long time and not meet a single example of his type. Most of the charm of the book lies in the fact that he is not a "typical American."

Extra Compensation Paid by State to Mentors Who Remain at Same School

Checks totaling $1,791.45 have been received by A. G. The state provides extra compensation for rural teachers who remain at a school longer than one year. Fifty-seven teachers will share the aid this year.

No bonus is given at the end of the first year and the size of the check is determined by the length of service after that time. At the end of the second year the rural teacher receives bonus of $2 a month or $18; at the end of the third year she receives $4 a month or $36; at the end of the third year and at the end of every year after that the aid is $8 a month or $72. After a teacher reaches the age of 25, 5 percent is taken from her bonus check and placed in the teacher's retirement fund. Six teachers received the $72 dollar checks this year. They are the Misses Esther E. Buboltz, Marie Heideman, Agnes Junk, Marie A. Ruberg, Nellie Sommers and Warrene Sherman. Checks for other

The Prime Function of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana)

A bulletin of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States says: "The function of business is to provide for the material needs of mankind and to increase the wealth of the world and the value and happiness of life." These words might have been written to describe the ideals animating the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Among the more important "material needs" of society are the products of petroleum. When progress ushered in the industrial era, animal and vegetable oils were the only lubricants available and the quantity of these was insufficient to permit unlimited expansion.

Petroleum was discovered just when it was needed to supply the enormous quantities of lubricants required by this mechanical age.

The importance of gasoline as a servant of society came with the invention of the internal combustion engine and its application to the automobile. This product is now indispensable.

It is because the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been able to produce gasoline in ever-increasing quantities that it has been able to render its greatest service in "increasing the wealth of the world and the value and happiness of life."

Where twenty years ago only a handful of automobiles were in operation, today there are 17 1/2 millions in service.

The constant demand for gasoline has outstripped the increase in the production of crude oil.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has led the way in bridging this gap. It has accomplished this through such inventions as the Burton Cracking Process; through vision in anticipating future needs, and through ability to create an organization capable of functioning economically and efficiently under the stress of rapidly changing conditions.

The prime function of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is to provide society with a dependable service of oil products to meet its material needs and to increase the sum total of wealth available to the common good.

This Company takes profound pride in rendering this service and it believes that, in so serving, it deserves and earns the reasonable profits which are paid over to its stockholders in return for the use of the capital they have invested in the business.

RUBBER MAKERS RAISE MONEY TO FIGHT MONOPOLY

Americans Getting Ready for Battle With Great British
Rubber Trust

BY BRUCE CATTON
Akron, O.—Half a billion dollars for a war chest to fight the British rubber monopoly!

This, in all probability, will be the answer of America's tire and rubber manufacturers to the sky-high rise in crude rubber prices engineered by the British growers.

It will be accompanied by stringent efforts to cut American rubber requirements down to the bare essentials.

This will be accomplished partly by increasing the use of "made-over" rubber.

The fight against the monopoly has not yet taken definite form, but important developments are due any time.

If it is made, as now seems certain, it cannot bear much fruit for years.

NO IMMEDIATE RELIEF
For the plain fact of the matter is that there is no immediate relief in sight.

Here is the program for the fight, as outlined by authorities here:

The American manufacturers will invest approximately $500,000,000 in their own rubber plantations, to be located in the Dutch East Indies, free of British domination, and with assurances of a friendly, helpful attitude on the part of the Dutch government.

Right now the Dutch plantations in the east produce a fair percentage of America's supply. But this percentage is nowhere near large enough to counteract the British monopoly's hold on the market.

Starting a rubber plantation is a long and difficult proposition.

Ten years is the minimum time before new trees can make a fair yield.

So even if the American investors went to work today, the new sources of supply would not be open for a long time.

But eventually the grip of the British monopoly would be broken. And that is the goal of the rubber men.

The Rubber Association of America, to which most of the important rubber manufacturers belong, was for a time divided into two factions.

WILLING TO FIGHT

One faction, in which Harvey Firestone, was perhaps the most notable figure, wanted war to the knife, with American rubber men boldly striking out to establish a supply independent of the British.

The other, backed by W. O. Rutledge, president of the association, urged a conciliatory policy with the British, hoping that the British growers might be induced to relax the Stevenson law and permit more reasonable prices.

The latter policy was tried most of this year.

Officials of the British Rubber Growers' Association, who promised two years ago that the law would be relaxed as soon as prices got moderately high, have been deaf to American pleas, however.

Consequently many manufacturers are turning to the Firestone faction. Firestone, in conjunction with Henry Ford, has been experimenting with a rubber plantation in Florida recently.

But it is not expected that the solution of the problem will come that way. And here's why:

In the far east, where most rubber plantations are located, owners can get coolie labor to work their fields for a wage of about two cents an hour.

In America no one could hope to do it for less than $5 a day.

And since the labor cost is nearly 45 per cent of the cost of producing raw rubber, it is easy to see that that just about lets the United States out.

But negotiations have been under way with the Dutch. The Dutch have expressed their desire to aid Americans to start plantations on their territory.

HOOVER URGES "MAKE-OVER"
Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover is loud in his pleas that manufacturers turn more and more to used rubber that has been made over.

A chemical process has been perfected whereby good rubber, nearly as good as that fresh from the tree, can be made from used tires.

At present this method supplies about 20 per cent of the rubber used in this country.

Hoover believes it could supply 40 per cent and the next few months undoubtedly will see the making-over plants expanded.

The men are conferring with automotive engineers looking to standardization of tire sizes and styles. This they say, will save a great deal of rubber.

But for the immediate future there is little relief in sight.

America's answer will take time—and meanwhile the monopoly will go on collecting.

City Bosses Disdain Fishing But Storm Refreshment Truck

Irresistibly attracted by the dulcet harmony of the voices of Fred Bachman, Bill Eggert, Les Hansen and Charlie Hopfensperger raised in the expression of their longing for a fair maiden named Sweet-Adeline, Mayor Henry Kitz of Oshkosh and several members of his official family traveled miles Tuesday to join the Appleton city fathers in their annual day of merrymaking at Mark Catlin's camp on Blackbird Island. They must have been drawn by the sweet strains of music borne to them across the intervening miles, because the vagrant breezes were hardly strong enough to carry the appetizing odors of savory baked hams, dill pickles, rye bread and other refreshments to their fair city. At any rate they appeared at the camp shortly after lunch, and were made welcome.

No doubt some weighty problems were settled when John J. and Henry withdrew from the general turmoil after Henry had tasted the hospitality of his Appleton colleague, and both cities soon will feel the benefits of their inspired planning and confabulation. But soon the truce was broken off and the two mayors found their factions opposed on the field of battle for the honor of their respective cities. Each of them sent nine men into the fray, but after seven innings of baseball had ended in a 5 to 5 tie, the battle was declared ended with honors even.

During the morning, before the arrival of the Oshkosh delegation, Captain John Goodland's baseball team was beaten, 7 to 0, by an aggregation headed by Charley Fose as head of the street and bridge committee. Exhausted by their violent exertions the opposing teams and their rooters sought out sunny nooks and after slumbering for a time, repaired to the camp for refreshments.

The feeling of friendship and unity among the city fathers was so great that none of them could bear the thought of leaving the others, although Mark Catlin, as host, journeyed to far away Oshkosh to bring back three boats so that they might fish. This touching sentiment was evidenced further by the way in which the pleniters grouped themselves closely about the delivery truck of Charlie Hopfensperger near the camp, probably because the running boards and steps offered seats for most of them. This spot also found favor with the Oshkosh delegation until the final

BLAINE VETOES SANATORIA BILL

Outagamie-co Officers Disappointed at Refusal to Increase State Aid

Veto by Gov. Blaine of the Reppel bill increasing the amount of state aid for county tuberculosis patients is a disappointment to a number of members of Outagamie-co board of supervisors.

The county board, spurred by the board of trustees of Riverview sanatorium, did considerable work in support of the bill. It not only passed resolutions asking legislature for an increase of state aid to $7 a week per capita, but through its officers kept the mails busy with letters to individual members of legislature urging their support.

The governor's objection was not so much against an increase in state aid, but because the bill actually provides for an unlimited appropriation. Heretofore the state aid was limited to $225,000 a year which last year allowed the county sanatorium here about $5 a week per patient.

"County sanitariums are as much county institutions as are the county asylums," said the governor. "Seventy-five per cent of the inmates belong to the respective counties, while the other 25 per cent come from other counties that pay an amount, as will equal the total cost of the individuals' maintenance, as is determined by the board of trustees of each institution and the state board of control."

"This bill, on the present per capita, state treasury for next year, and of rate treasury for next year, and of course that amount will increase from year to year."

Service veterans is a national organization composed of all who served their country in authorized capacities during the World war, and is to its civilian membership what the American Legion is to the ex-soldier. The Hon. Frank Comerford, national president of the Service Veterans of the United States, has issued a call requesting all former members of the selective service boards and American Protective league, to get solidly behind the efforts of the war department to make the defense day test the practical success that is desired. The organization in summing up the principles it stands for uses as its slogan the words of Woodrow Wilson: "To make us single hearted in our love of America, and united in our purpose for her advancement."

Your Will

If you were suddenly obliged to make an extended business trip, you would not call in a friend and expect him to conduct your business while you were away. You would call in your assistants, familiar with your business, and give them instructions to follow during your absence.

But what of your estate should you fail to return? Will it be managed by a friend or relative, unprepared and inexperienced in business and estate matters? Or will a trust company, organized and equipped to care for such business, manage your affairs?

Voile Dress Gains Favor For Summer

As the summer season draws nearer, the voile dress assumes greater importance, says the Dry Goods Economist. Many of the shops are showing plain voiles in lovely pastel colors, sometimes combining two or more harmonizing shades in one dress. A youthful guest dining at the Plaza Hotel in New York during the lunch hour the other day, appeared in a French blue voile frock, the skirt band and lower puff sleeve sections being of shell pink voile. A distinctive decorative touch was afforded by means of embroidery done in narrow metallic ribbon.

Another fair patroness at the Plaza wore, a marigold voile frock trimmed with lace. This she topped with a keghorn hat banded with purple velvet.

In a recent window display a large store featured white voile dresses decorated with Czechoslovakian embroidery for the junior girl and miss.

Delicately tinted, pastel colored frocks in fine voile were shown at a smart New York shop during the past week.

Adventures Of The Twins

MORE TROUBLE IN DADDY GANDY TOWN

When Snitcher Snatch, the goblin, rolled out of the Muffin Man's back door, some of the magic snuff spilled out of the gold snuff box and blew all over Daddy Gander's Town.

Then the fun began. The Balloon Man was just getting his balloons blown up for the circus, when a grain of snuff blew up his nose.

"Achoo!" he went. "Achoo! Achoo! Achoo!"

And he caused such a breeze with all his sneezing that his bunch of balloons broke away from the string and, tied down from, carried him with them up into the air.

"He went up and up and up," calling loudly for help, but when you hear of the troubles that other people were having, you won't be surprised that nobody could come to the poor fellow's aid.

"I think he struck a mountain peak and caught on a rock and hung there until the Man in the Moon telegraphed to the government to send a flying machine to rescue him.

"If you ask him the next time you see him, he can tell you all about it."

At about the same time the Old Apple Woman had piled her fruit stand with shiny red apples and yellow oranges and lemons and coconuts, also pop-orn, peanuts, and a lot of other things besides.

She had just polished the last red apple and set it on top of the pile, when a grain of the magic snuff got up her nose.

"Achoo!" she sneezed, and really it was as loud as if one of the cannon in front of the courthouse had gone off.

Such a sudden gust of wind was too much for the apples, and the oranges, and the lemons.

Away they rolled, pell-mell down the hill, bumpity, tumble, like so many bowling balls.

Thomas Stout, the alderman, was just coming out of his office, but no sooner had he stepped into the street than away he went! The apples upset him like a ten-pin.

The apples rolled and the oranges rolled and Thomas Stout rolled, and they kept on rolling until they struck the fish-man's cart.

Away went the fish in every direction. Every cat in Daddy Gander Town had fish for his dinner that day.

As Fuss-in-Bots declared afterward, it is all wind that blows nobody good—even if the wind is a sneeze.

Thomas Stout rolled almost to Doctor Foster's front door, so the good doctor took him in and bandaged him up and gave him stuff to put on his bruises, and charged him a dollar.

So you see, the sneeze did Doctor Foster a good turn, too.

But the poor Apple Woman cried out, "Lack a daisy! I've sneezed all my fortune away. What's to be done now?"

Mister Whitez and the Twins were near enough to hear.

"This is to be done," said the fairy-man. "I'll pay you for all the apples you have lost. If you keep your two eyes open and tell me if you see a little goblin around anywhere. A little goblin with a long nose and crooked legs."

The Old Apple Woman took the money and thanked him kindly.

"I'll do what I can," she promised, sticking the money down her stocking.

FASHION HINTS

MORE LACES USED

Cream and ecru laces in the heavier meshes are used to good effect on black satin and chiffon gowns.

SINGLE BRACELET

A single wide bracelet with jewels forming some complicated design is now considered smarter than the many small circlets.

CHECKED TWEED

A most attractive ensemble consists of a white kasha cloth dress and a coat of black and white checked tweed—the checks being very large.

COLD CREAM BATH AND ICE RUB IS GLADYS' FAD FOR BEAUTY CULTURE

BY GLADYS LOFTUS

Ice baths are my particular fad in beauty culture. Every night before I retire I cleanse my face thoroughly with cold cream. I smear it on thick and then remove every bit with a soft cloth.

Then I wrap a piece of ice in an old linen towel and rub it all over my face, neck and shoulders until my skin tingles and gets the fashionable new beet shade. Particularly I hold it long under my chin where it is most important that the flesh should be firm and solid and the fatty tissues, given no encouragement to abide.

By keeping my skin healthy and vigorous, the color and texture takes care of itself and rouge and lipstick have no meaning in my scheme of things.

"Naturally I want you to do something," the man says.

The woman starts to speak. The man holds up his hand.

"Wait a minute. My dear, let me explain."

"Can it be explained?" the woman asks wearily.

"I don't know whether explanations will do any good, but I am going to be honest with you. I am obsessed with the girl you saw me with today. I can not get her out of my mind. She means all the joy of living; all the youth and illusion that I thought had gone out of my life forever. My sane common sense tells me that I am not only a fool but something too bad to name in my action toward you."

"I think perhaps this foolishness will pass. I hope it will, but now I tell you honestly, dear, I am like a lad in his first infatuation."

The woman spasmodically clasps her hands across her heart as though the words had burned themselves in to her very soul.

"Why do you insult me with all this?" she asks. "Is it not enough to injure me as you have without telling me of your indecency in so many words?"

"Oh, I know, I know," he answers wearily. "but the whole thing has passed out of my hands. Can't you bear with me a little? Certainly you can't despise me more than I do myself. We have lived together too long and presented a too happy front to the world to now take it into our confidence as to our misery."

"While I shall stand by anything that you decide, I hope there will be no scandal."

The woman leaves him, goes to her room and remembers that although he may not love her she has the habit of him. She thinks that this liaison of his is only reaching out for the youth that he felt was running away from him. She understands that a woman seeks youth after 40 in the boxes of cosmetics or on her dressing table, and a man seeks it across a restaurant table in a young girl's eyes.

She determines to fight for her own. Again she sees that bunch of violets with the young face above it, the red inviting lips—the whole sexual lure of a young and beautiful woman.

The next day she tells her husband that she is going to invite the girl into her home as she has found out that she is a young widow of good reputation.

Then for three months the woman suffers the torment of the damned. She feels not to see anything except what is on the surface. She introduces the girl to her friends. There is tennis in the morning and golf in the afternoon. There is swimming and bathing and long rides and dancing every night until almost morning. The woman has her always doing something and she throws the girl at her husband's head until she finds that he is inexhaustibly weary of her youthful energy. He can not keep up the pace of dinners and dances. The rich food has deranged his stomach. He goes to sleep in his chair at the opera. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

Household Hints

WASH IN POTATO WATER
To clean black silk, wash it in water in which pared potatoes have been boiled. This stiffens the silk and makes it glossy.

CLEANING WHITE LACE
White lace that is only slightly soiled may be cleaned by sprinkling it thickly with powdered magnesite and rolling in a towel for a day or so. Then open and shake out the powder.

FISH LOSE FLAVOR
Cod, haddock and halibut may be kept a day before using, but mackerel and whitefish lose their flavor if they stand.

HERE'S A JELLY TEST
This is an infallible jelly test: It is done when a very little poured from a spoon forms a single large drop and breaks away quickly from the spoon.

TURN MATTRESS
If you wish to get the best possible wear from a mattress turn it end for end one day and over sideways the next when you make the bed. This way the wear will be evenly distributed.

LONG SCARFS
Scarfs worn with the new frocks are very long and often banded with fluffy fur.

Good Diet Of Clear Soups And Greens

There are many different ways of achieving the weight one desires. A quick method and desperate one, is the operation. There are ointments and lotions and pills and potions of one kind and other for those who believe in signs. But, after all, there is only one royal road to correct weight and that is by diet. Exercise we omit, for one should exercise on general principle, no matter what one's weight, provided, of course, one is normal and healthy.

This article, by the way, is written for such people only. Those who are over or under weight because of some physical ailment or condition should consult a physician. This is for those who eat not wisely but too well and for those who eat neither wisely nor well enough. And we honestly believe, if you follow some of the simple suggestions given here, you will find a decided and regular improvement in your weight.

There are certain conditions to recognize in achieving a desired weight. One is regularity in eating. Whether you are eating to grow thin or to grow stout, you must observe regular meal-times. You must eat in a peaceful atmosphere and a peaceful frame of mind—or as nearly so as is possible. And you must chew your food thoroughly.

It is a good plan to drink a glass of water before beginning a meal and if you drink tea or coffee to drink it at the end of a meal, sipping it hot. The chief objection to drinking a liquid with meal is this: Too many people use it to wash down partially chewed food, which increases the work of the digestive organs and decreases the food value.

If you must break your diet, do it sensibly, and arrange for a corresponding deficiency in other foods. That warning is for stout people only. The thin ones won't need it.

However, everything in the world depends on your mental attitude so make up your mind that by following a regular plan you will secure the result you desire. Then go ahead and do it.

Clear soups, plenty of green, uncooked vegetables as well as cooked

GLOVES ARE "FRILLY"

The frills you see gracing this lady's wrists are not on her frock, but on her gloves, and they are quite as appropriate with the sleeveless frock as with the long-sleeved blouse. They come in black or white and are very feminine, indeed.

vegetables of almost every kind, gluten, bran or toasted bread, lean meat and fruit will constitute the list of approved dishes for those desiring to reduce.

Cream soups vegetables of all kinds, white bread, hot biscuits, rice with cream and sugar, as well as all other cooked cereals, fat meats and sweets make up the preferred diet list for those who are underweight. However, green salads and fruits should be eaten generously, for in one's ardor to gain, one sometimes overloads the digestive system and clogs up the avenues of elimination.

A good plan to follow is this, if you who desire to reduce find yourself becoming unpleasantly hungry, drink a glass of buttermilk between meals or before going to bed, while rice with cream and sugar, between meals, is just the thing for those trying to add to their weight.

CREPE JUMPER DRESS SUMMER STYLE NOTE

The recent hot spell in New York has brought forth summer clothes in profusion, says the Dry Goods Economist. Every one is trying to look cool and be as comfortable as is possible without sacrificing smartness. At the Plaza Hotel in New York where those who have come into town for a day's tour of the shops or who are impeded for some reason or other from staying in the "great open spaces," come for delicious cool things to eat, one encounters both young and older well-dressed women.

In many cases the debutantes cling steadfastly to the two-piece jumper dress of crepe de Chine or georgette. Twins always cause marked interest and when they are dressed attractively the interest becomes manifold. Perhaps twenty, not more, certainly, twin sisters were seen at this luncheon rendezvous, dressed in the two-piece dress of crepe de Chine. One chose French blue while the other selected heliotrope. Their hats of felt matched their costumes, while the girl in blue wore walking shoes of tan calfskin and her sister wore similar ones in gray. The former girl wore a coral pin in her blue hat and a string of coral beads while the other fair young person selected jade accessories.

The older woman, who undoubtedly feels the necessity of some coat or other to add formality to her costume, wears a black or white georgette coat over a printed frock.

DON'T CATCH A SPRING COLD
Though March with its chill and bluster is past, spring weather changes have a habit of bringing on colds.

Children and grownups too, shed their heavy wraps or coat when they become warm. Then they neglect to put them back on before they chill.

Often the result is a cold, and every mother should know what to do to check this cold before it becomes serious.

LOOP LEADERS KEEP EVEN PACE IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Athletics Squeeze Out 9th-Inning Win To Hold Their Lead Over Senators

Giants-Lose Chance for Gain by Splitting Double Bill While Pirates Are Idle

New York—Renewed sectional combat in major league baseball finds the leading contenders still jockeying for place.

Pittsburg's ambition to edge closer to the National League peak by taking both games of a scheduled double-header at St. Louis was delayed by rain and the Giants continued to maintain a leeway of one and a half games by splitting a twin program with the Robins, dropping the first 3 to 5 and then taking the second by the same score.

Manager John McGraw occupied the bench Tuesday for the first time since he was stricken ill several weeks ago. He watched his club bump the Brooklyn outfit for the sixth time this season.

The Phillies started in earnest to make up for 11 straight losses in the west by pulling out in front in both ends of a bargain bill with the Braves 9-7, and 7-3.

Aided by the hitting of Mandy Brooks and Adams, the Cubs traveled through to a 6 to 5 decision over the Reds.

Washington contributed to the Yankees' woes by landing hard on Shocker and Ferguson to win 8-1. In the initial meeting of a three-game L.L.

The Athletics kept their distance from the Senators by rallying in the ninth to score all their runs for a 3 to 2 victory.

Ty Cobb performed in the box Tuesday in an exhibition game with the Toronto Leafs. The minors started in to have a field day at his expense when he went on the slab in the eighth but after one run had been scored he proved he had something on the ball besides the coyer. Detroit won 12 to 3, Cobb hanging up a homer, a double and a pair of singles.

BIG TEN'S BABE

REEDSVILLE BEATS GREEN BAY SQUAD

Green Bay—The Clusmans Grocers bit the dust at Reedsville by the score of 8 to 1. The Bay nine counted their lone marker in the ninth round. Reedsville got to Schuette when the bags were populated and timely sweating paved the way for the counters. Several hits of sensational fielding-alpined budding rallies by the Clusmans.

The score by innings: R H E Clusmans 0 0 0 0 0 0 1-1 6 3 Reedsville 2 4 0 2 0 0 0 8-14 3 Batteries: Clusmans, Schuette and Pinchard; Reedsville, Hoge and Ludtke.

John "Johnny" Schueller, Appleton boy and former manager and first sacker of the Beyer Sentinels, is playing a star game at the second bag for the Reedsville crew. He is hitting the apple hard.

TORONTO IS GIVING BALTIMORE GOOD FIGHT

Toronto is giving the championship Baltimore Orioles team a nice fight for the leadership in the International League. Dan Howley has his boys playing heads-up baseball. And there might be such a thing that the Leafs will succeed in halting the long regime of the Dunn entourage.

Hornsby Treats Players Different Than Rickey

New York—Rogers Hornsby's elevation to the management of the St. Louis Cardinals, succeeding Branch Rickey, will provide an interesting test of the executive ability and leadership of the very fine young manager. Rickey had some fine material in the past five years, but he failed to get the results that were expected of him and when the business end of the club began to feel the effects of the depression, a change had to be made.

With the same material Hornsby may not be able to form a winning team and the question then arises if the material at hand isn't good enough, where is he going to get anything better? It is likely, however, that the playing of the team will improve. There never has been any charge that the team laid down on Rickey, but it is a cinch that they never worked any harder than the law requires.

Rickey had a lot of trick ideas about the handling of a ball club that made some of the older athletes feel they were being treated like children. He not only had blackboard talks on baseball but he extended his skill sessions to arithmetic and the grammar school arts and sciences.

One of his players told a story several years ago about one of these skull sessions in the club house. Rickey was in the midst of a complicated play on the blackboard when he suddenly asked a Cuban player on the team: "Manuel, who was the father of your country?" "Christopher Columbus," was the answer.

SHOES KICK SPECIALS TO WIN BY 13-9 COUNT

Before a crowd of 200 fans, the largest that has ever attended a softball game in the Fox river valley, the Clubhouse Specials defeated the Weyden Shoes, Tuesday evening, 13-9. In a Kimberly Twilight League game. The Shoes were way off form and displayed all kinds of errors while the Specials played good ball all the way. Thursday evening the Wrinkle Rounders and Postmaster's Specials mix in a loop game. Batteries: Shoes—Wes Riley and C. Nelson; Specials—A. Schwanke and J. Verbeten. The Shoes got off to a good start scoring three runs in the opening frame but they were unable to keep up the pace and six runs for the Specials in the fourth put the game on ice.

NEW COMBINED LOCKS CREW IS STRONG TEAM

With Lozier, new hurler of the Combined Locks Paper Co. team, holding Neneah to three scattered hits, the Papermakers copied a victory Saturday afternoon at Combined Locks Park by a 3-0 score. The game was the first for Lozier with the Papermakers. The Locks boys played ball behind the new hurler and showed a crew that will make any semi-pro group in the state work to win. "Boots" Lamers returned to the fold this week. "Boots" has been playing everyday ball with Stormy Kromer's Blytheville outfit and is in real condition for steady action. Several of the leading clubs of the state will be seen in Combined Locks, according to tentative plans.

The new combined Locks lineup is: Van Havel, 3b; Red Cavil, Verbeten and Ray Smith, fielders; Marty Lamers, 2b; Red Smith; c. Schal, 1b; Morris, ss; Lozier, p.

Errors lost another game for the Wynboon Stars of Kimberly Sunday when the Kaukauna crew, taking advantage of every misplay, stepped off with a 11-5 win. Miller of the winners struck out eight batters and walked four. J. Stein of Kimberly got five men and walked four in four frames while Kamps, who finished the game for the Stars, kept the Electric City hits scattered the remainder of the tilt and sent nine men down via the strike out route. A Stein and Wildenberg started with the war club for the losers, each getting two doubles and a single.

Lineups were: Kimberly—W. Wildenberg, 1b; Kamps, 3b; A. Stein, rf; J. Wildenberg, c; Vandenberg, cf; Nathrop, 1b; Van Elzen, 2b; J. Stein, p. Kaukauna—Miller, ss; Rader, c; Mayer, cf; Miller, p; Vils, 3b; Mac-Groble, 1b; Geibers, 1b; Schulte, rf; Golden, 2b.

CANNEFAX, 3-CUSHION CHAMP, IS SUSPENDED

Chicago—Robert L. Cannefax of New York, three cushion billiard champion, Tuesday was suspended by the National Three Cushion Billiard league for one year as a result of his conduct in a recent game with Willie Hoppe, of Chicago.

Cannefax, after losing to the balk line billiard title holder, slashed the cloth on the billiard table with a pocket knife, causing Hoppe to refuse to continue the match. The suspension means that Cannefax will not be eligible to play in the league next season.

PROMISING-LIGHTWEIGHT

PROMISING-LIGHTWEIGHT

Here's the boy who put the well known skids under Johnny Dundee in their recent bout at Coney Island. It was the second time within a short stretch that the veteran lost to the youngster. And the double defeat no doubt means the end of the one-time feather king as a pugilist.

Terris looms as one of the most promising fighters in his class. Not so long ago he was figured to be on his way to the top, only to run amuck one Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., who gained the verdict over him.

Since the Mandell whipping, however, Terris has come back with a vengeance and must be reckoned with in fistiana.

TWO POSES OF SID TERRIS, PROMISING LIGHTWEIGHT BOXER.

Star Pyott Hurler Signs Infield To Handle Bunts

Lefty Sullivan, pitcher for Niesen's Pyotts, is one of the most discussed players and perhaps the most cussed in independent baseball.

Except for a habit of fielding a ball and throwing wildly to base he would doubtless be a shining light in the major leagues. Fans actually go out to games to see Lefty throw the ball away.

Sullivan has made an amazing record for the Pyotts. In thirteen games played up to and including Sunday, Lefty won twelve and lost one. He has struck out 120 batters, an average of 1.25 per inning. He has allowed two runs a game, and walked only twenty men in these thirteen battles. That's a record which reminds one of such left-handers as Rube Waddell and Eddie Plank.

Lefty unquestionably is one of the most effective pitchers in independent ball. He has so much stuff on his fast ball and his hooks that batters have trouble when they try to bunt on him. In a recent game against the American Giants for seven innings the colored stars tried bunting, yet he beat them handily. He has signs with various players on the team to handle the ball when it is bunted. The object is to keep it out of Lefty's hands except when he is actually pitching to the batter.

One play is for the third baseman to run over to Sully on a bunt, so if Lefty fields it he hands the ball to the player who hurls it over to first. On another play the sign is given to the catcher who runs up on a bunt. Sully tosses the ball to him, and he throws it to first. Still another sign involves the shortstop and another the second baseman.

No matter where the ball is bunted, Sullivan usually has some plan near at hand to slip it to, thus eliminating any chance of a bad throw to first.

He still has the old habit of throwing the ball over the grand stand or to the ground a few feet in front of him when he tries to do it himself. It's a habit, or whatever you care to call it, that has distinguished Lefty through many years.

He had it when he was pitching for the White Sox some seasons ago. He looked like a great pitcher then. All you have to do is let him pitch. He doesn't claim to be an infidel.

SECOND PLACE BATTLE ON CARD IN LARK LOOP

The battle for second place in the Lark loop will be renewed Thursday afternoon at Jones park when the Lions and Rotarians mix in a fight to a finish. A surprise defeat by the Rotarians last week dropped the Lions from second place and put the Lions in its place.

The Lions have won two games and lost three for a .408 mark and the Rotarians have one victory and two defeats for a .333 mark. A win for the Rotary squad will mean second place for that crew with a .500 average. The Lion squad also will get a good foothold on the same place over the Rotarians and Kiwanis with a win and will gain the 500 mark as a real battle is on deck. Probable hurling selections are Jensen or Connolly for the Junior Kings, and Fred Schlitz for the Rotary gang.

The score by innings: 1 0 0 2 0 0 0-3 6 4 Reformatory 1 0 2 0 0 0 0-6 7 4

Next Saturday the Reformatory is scheduled to cross bats with the Combined Locks outfit.

LEGION LICKS KIWANIS, 9-8

Five Runs in Final Frame Pulls Soldiers to Win Over Fighting Tailenders

Legion 9 0 1 0 30

STANDINGS

	W	L	Pct.
Legion	7	0	1.000
Lions	12	3	.800
Rotary	1	2	.333
Kiwanis	1	6	.143

Fighting like wildcats to maintain that old first place in the Lark League standings, the Legion squad pulled off a five-run rally to come from behind in the ninth frame and finally beat the rejuvenated Kiwanis Tuesday night at Jones park by a 9-8 score. The five runs were all needed as the losers pulled a little session of their own in the final part of the ninth frame and lost by a margin of only one run. The game was one of the hardest fought in the city this year. The Legion, greatly weakened by the absence of three of its heaviest hitters, C. Baetz, E. Bates and O. Bayer, was behind all the way, but fought to tie and pulled the rally when most of the spectators had the game marked up for a Kiwanis win and the first Legion loss.

Basing, who hauled for the Kiwanis crew during Schlitz's absence, turned in a fine article of ball, but at times his support gave out on him. It was Base's second game on the mound in two days.

One Legion run scored when the ball was thrown wide at second and third permitting the runner to come over all the way from first. Schabo made three errors for the Legion. The Kiwanis gang, playing like demons, scored three times in the first four frames while Basing allowed the Legion one score. Three more came over in the sixth and the score stood 6-3 for the Kiwanis. With the score 6-4 and an inning to go, Starnard's heavy artillery got into action and stormed five runs over in the first of the ninth. Here the losers put up the best fight of the day to score runs, but the tying run remained on the sacks and the Legion took a real battle.

Lineups were: Legion—Schabo, Starnard, Hartzell, Smith, Schultz, Fries, Meyer, James Balliet, Carter and Sanders. Kiwanis—McKenzie, Bacon, Basing, Beyer, Carlson, Enger, Schneider, Urban, Rossmelss and Cross.

BEYER SENTINELS WANT BALL GAME FOR SUNDAY

The Beyer Sentinel ball team, Appleton's representative in independent ball circles, is without a game for next Sunday and every effort is being made to schedule a tilt in order to keep the Beyer crew in good shape for the fast competition it still has to meet. The boys have had plenty of tough luck in the last few starts, but expect to come through for the rest of the year. The practice work-out against the Appleton Fox River crew of the Eastern Wisconsin loop last week showed that the Beyer gang is a real team.

Managers having open dates for Sunday are requested to get into communication with Roger Ashman, 236 S. Cherry-st., phone 145, or John Zuehlman, 515 E. Spring-st., phone 1728-W.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Danny Kramer, Philadelphia featherweight, won the judges' decision over Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird, Md., in ten rounds.

Local Men Play Big Part In Victory Of Wisconsin Golfers At Michigan Meet

K. S. Dickinson Features Play With 6-0 Victory Over Upper Peninsula Champ

When the Northwestern Wisconsin golf team, composed of 20 players from the golf clubs of the Northwestern Wisconsin Golf association, won the first leg on the new five-match trophy by defeating the Upper Michigan squad at Menominee, Mich., Monday by a score of 63-45, Appleton Monday by a score of 63-45, five Appleton men, members of the River-view Country club, took a prominent part in the win. K. S. Dickinson won six points for the Badger crew. C. S. Dickinson won four and lost two; Jack Stevens won four and lost two; A. H. Hooker won five; Dr. G. N. Pratt lost 5. Appleton's score in the match was 19-9 for the Badger squad total. The Nassau system of scoring, which consists of two 18-hole matches of 3 points each, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, was used. By this system one point is given for the first nine holes, one for the second and one for the winner on all 18 holes. A large crowd attended the matches.

K. S. Dickinson's victory was more important because he trounced Frank St. Peter, star Menominee player and upper peninsula champ, 6-0. Individual honors went to Donald Boyce, 18-year old Escanaba high school youth, who shot a 72 using the score of Jack Hutchinson, former British open champ made on the same course in an exhibition game Sunday. W. K. Kerwin of Green Bay, northeastern Wisconsin champ, and Chick Evans, former national amateur champ, beat St. Peter and Jack Hutchinson 4 up and 2 to go in the exhibition match. The Wisconsin team has won three out of the last five annual matches and so have won permanent possession of the first trophy. Monday's matches gave them a leg on the second cup.

KENOSHA BEST OFF WITHOUT WARD SYSTEM

Osborn, City Manager, Tells Rotary Club of Savings and Progress of Plan

Kenosha is a better governed city without ward representation than it was with it and makes more rapid progress by having a council elected at large than with an which always is thinking in terms of this ward or that ward.

In this declaration at the Rotary club's weekly luncheon Tuesday noon at Conway hotel, C. M. Osborn, Kenosha's city manager, unwittingly hit at the heart of a question that has been puzzling many who have discussed a change of government here.

The speaker, in an address devoid of oratory, painted a matter-of-fact picture of a city that overcame opposition so that it could change from aldermanic government to the city manager plan. Kenosha was the first in the state to take advantage of the new law empowering cities to change thus.

COSTS WENT DOWN
A modest description of Kenosha's experience revealed how costs went down, public improvements increased without adding to the tax burden and responsibility no longer was tossed around the city hall circle. The dollars go in and out through one cash register and the city knows exactly where the public's money is being spent. Common sense business methods have been applied to the buying of the things the city needs and savings are made in every direction. There was intense interest in every word the speaker said, and the questions put to him afterward indicated that the Rotarians and guests accepted his statements with confidence and were profoundly interested in how these same methods could be applied to Appleton.

"Kenosha's city council, which is the policy fixing body empowered to hire the manager is made up of five men chosen from the city at large," said Mr. Osborn. "There is no ward representation such as you find in the aldermanic system. This may seem rather strange to some of your citizens. You may wonder how a city can be operated without ward administration, but I assure you it works well to our advantage to have this council chosen at large. These men think of the city as a whole and that is why Kenosha is stepping out in front. They are not thinking of the First ward or the Second ward or any other."

"It may surprise you to know that all five members of our council are elected from the First ward, although our city has nine wards. People represent this very much when the plan first was adopted and some of them thought they ought to form a little government of their own and move out. After we had started to work the attitude changed. They found that all the improvements, for instance, were going to the Eighth, Ninth or some other ward and that the First got nothing. The aldermen are interested only in what is best for the whole city of Kenosha."

JUST LIKE INDUSTRY
City manager government is what may be found in every factory or big institution of any kind, explained Mr. Osborn. The council is the board of directors and this body hires the manager to run the plant. The reason this is done is that the concern and the city, too, can declare greater dividends. Better service, greater efficiency and a harmonious corps of employees are the result. This matter of harmony is important because it gives team work. The board of directors is the policy setting body and in city affairs gives the same service as is found in a business institution.

"This is a day of specialists in city business as well as in anything else," declared the city manager. "Yet in the aldermanic form anybody can run for office and get it. You elect the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker and then wonder why you don't have more efficient government."

Kenosha's council has no authority over the appointment of any officer. Each is hired by the city manager, and knows definitely who he is working for. The city employee does not have to enter to any councilman or be influenced by anyone. He is hired for results and holds his position as long as he produces them. He does not get in through political pull. Men hired for their fitness knuckle right down and try to deliver, the manager finds. They are not trying to do work as is done by men who do not know just who they are working for.

FINANCES CONTROLLED
Control of Kenosha's finances is one reason for success of its city manager system, Mr. Osborn indicated. The aldermanic system has an assessor to assess the property; the city clerk figures out the taxes; the list is turned over to the treasurer and he collects the money. Three men are doing the work that should be entrusted to one. In the rush period these officials hire their friends to help them. There are always new people coming in and there is too much of a turnover of workers.

This has been changed in Kenosha by placing all this work in one department. The man in charge is called the director of finance. He has his assistants, one of whom makes the assessments. There is one set of employees retained from year to year to do all this work. They figure the tax roll, make out the statements and attend to the collections when the time comes. Quicker and better service results. Every dollar that goes in or out of the city coffers is checked by the finance officer. It is not distributed in a dozen cash registers, as was the case in the aldermanic system.

It was an interesting story that Mr. Osborn told about the changes he made in order to bring about efficiency in the police department. The police and fire commission was abolished entirely. Policemen and firemen are hired by the city manager and the chiefs of these departments do the rest. They are told they are to serve and they must deliver. It was found that the ordinary policeman were not restrained by the fact that they were not to do his full duty. The ordinary city won't let him, however, he said. The speaker illustrated by mentioning a gambling den operating in Kenosha's downtown section. The police wished to raid the place but the fire and police commission ordered the place to be left alone. After the commission was abolished, the chief promised a day off to any policeman who would raid it. Eighteen applied for the holiday after a typical "wild west" cleanup of the place. Since the first of the year policemen have arrested four for trying to entice them into graft.

MORE FOR MONEY
So many public improvements have been demanded by the people of Kenosha that the taxes have not been reduced but the result of accomplishments with the same amount of money as used before under the aldermanic plan indicates what the manager has accomplished by applying good business methods. Maintenance of Kenosha in 1921, the last full year of aldermanic rule, was $25 per capita. The cost has receded annually since then. Mr. Osborn's figures show, until in 1924, it was $16.41, or a reduction of one-third. A civic center has been established, a million dollar courthouse erected, a high school costing a million and a half is being built, fifty thousand has been spent for parks and street paving of thirty miles has been accomplished.

Total city expenditures including both maintenance and capital outlays also have shown a marked reduction. The per capita cost for all purposes in 1921 was $28.19, in 1922, $26.51, in 1923, $22.35, and in 1924, $22.23. It has not been as much in any one year under city manager government as under the aldermanic, largely due to financial control by one department. The city's tax rate is $31 on each $1,000 of assessed valuation and property is assessed at 60 per cent of its true value.

Kenosha had 27 miles of paved streets when the city manager took charge. It has more than doubled that amount since, adding another 30 miles. Paving in 1921 for the average asphalt surface cost the old type of council $4 a square yard. Careful dealings have cut this sum each year and in 1924 the average was only $2.43, including curbs and gutters. At least one dollar a front foot has been saved property owners. No improvements of this kind are made unless the majority of the owners sign petitions asking them. There has been a difference of $700,000 in the cost of paving below what the city formerly paid. The people are shown fully that they get full value for their money.

NO CITY HALL SHAKEUP
There was no cleanup in the city hall when the manager went into office as often is supposed, said Mr. Osborn. Every employee remained but two. The man had served for ten years as city engineer, still is there. City employees voted against the change of government but now they no longer are opposed to it, since they find it much more satisfactory to work under a city manager than a bunch of politicians.

Examples of how money can be saved the city by good management were shown in various illustrations. Banks paid 2 per cent on city balances. Now they pay this sum only on the checking balance and the remainder in savings accounts at higher interest. More than enough is earned that way to pay the city manager's salary each year. Forty automobiles required in city work formerly were insured for $26.05 a car

OSBORN ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Rotarians desiring to know more about the city manager plan of government asked questions of C. M. Osborn which were ably answered. Some of these are given below.

Are the aldermen of your city council paid a salary?
They receive no pay whatever and we find that some of the best men of the city are glad to serve. The president of the council is W. H. Atford, financial manager of Nash Motors Co. Others are Mr. Barden, head of our biggest department store, Mr. Nickel, a leading jeweler, Mr. Buras, head of the employment department of Simmons Co., where 2,500 men are working, and Mr. Scholer, grocery merchant. They are willing to serve for the pleasure that is in it if they can do it honestly.

What is the attitude of labor toward the city manager plan?
Kenosha is known as an "open town" and the unions never have taken an active interest in this matter. The president of the trades and labor council has served on one or two city committees and he is outspoken in favor of the plan. Labor backed the movement in Dubuque, Iowa, and kept it from defeat at the hands of some who tried to overthrow it in Dayton, Ohio.

How do you manage a 60 per cent assessment when the commission now orders a 100 per cent or true basis?
Kenosha is the only county of Wisconsin "in the union," so we don't pay much attention to what is said in Madison. The state figures our property on a 100 per cent basis but as long as our own council fixes the assessment policy in our city, we stick to a 60 per cent basis for our own purposes.

What part do you have in educational matters?
I have no authority whatever in school matters in Kenosha. That is entirely up to the board of education. The council merely sets the tax rate and tells the board how much it can spend for schools.
